Chapter 1 by b3afy

Once, a woman was alone in the woods. She was carrying a baby she named Manuela de Cinco, with his destiny to have the best taco stand in all the land. But, the woman was running away from the evil castle guards, who rode on cart and horse, while only the mother's feet were the only chance of survival. A twig breaks off of a tree, suddenly, and the woman trips, throwing her baby like a quarterback into the woods. Manuela de Cinco was found in a muddy swamp, but who found him?

Chapter 2 by Wonder Story - In College

It was found by an enchanted unicorn. The unicorn was once a man but was changed into a unicorn by a jealous witch. The unicorn, whose name was Alejandro, used his magic to pick up the baby. He searched all around the woods but couldn't find the baby's parents. So he himself took care of him and taught him all he could about the woods and how it can be used for good and evil. The unicorn, being magic and all, could talk of course, and he would sing to the child every night with his beautiful voice.

Over the years, the child grew, his name was Juanito, and he made many friends with the kids from the school nearby. Alejandro thought it was important that Juanito learned human education and moved them to a different part of the Hallow Woods near a school where Alejandro made copies of their textbooks and allowed Juanito to socialize with the students during recess.

On Juanito's 16th birthday, Alejandro decided it was time to tell him about his past and who he when he was a man.

"Your destiny, child..." Alejandro told Juanito one day. "You were never birthed from my magical loins. You were the child of a woman, the name now lost in the strands of time."

Juanito was bewildered. He had always thought he belonged with Alejandro, and was a unicorn on the inside, too.

"Your destiny," Alejandro continued, oblivious to Juanito's internal troubles. "You were supposed to make the best corn stand in the whole entire world."

Juanito stared at Alejandro.

"C-corn stand??"

"Yes. It's confusing, but that's what your mother wanted. Grilled corn, steamed corn, corn-on the cob, corny jokes. corn, corn, corn."

Juanito stared at Alejandro like he was a crazy unicorn.

"Don't look at me like that! That's what your mother said!" Alejandro insisted.

After a moment of debate with himself, Juanito made a decision.

"Maybe I should go find her and ask her myself!"

Chapter 4 by b3afy

At night, Juanito remembered what he wanted to do earlier. Alejandro was still sleeping, and he was dead asleep every time. Juanito learned stealth at the human school, where every time the teacher left, he and his friends would sneakily go behind the teacher's desk to look at the answer key for all of the answers. Juanito slowly unzipped the sleeping bag he was in and tip-toed around every leaf and twig he could see.

Upon arrival, near the castle gate, Juanito realized he had to cross a moat dividing the inner wall and the outside Hallow Woods road. Suddenly, a familiar voice rung in Juanito's ears as he heard a very silent call to him. It was Alejandro. Alejandro clopped to Juanito without making a

Alejandro felt a sense of pride knowing he

"See this moat?" explained Juanito. "See this large wall? Don't you have some kind of levitation spell?"

"As a matter of fact, I do, and I will help --" Juanito celebrated for a split second before Alejandro moved on -- but, I am coming with you."

"What? This is personal to me, specifically."

"I am sorry, but aren't I your father?"

"Yes, thanks for pointing that out, but that doesn't mean you have to follow me."

"I need to know what you've been doing every time I wasn't around. I would hate to know if you have an addiction towards something."

"You are not my father! You adopted me!"

"Son...I have had the same feeling as you. Feeling of abandonment, loneliness...until I was found by a wonderful couple. I was raised by them. They helped me through life. They followed me with everything I did, payed attention to every detail of personality and actions. I promise, I would not embarrass my own son just because of personal experience. Dammit, look at me! I was a man. Now, I'm a little girl's imagination." Alejandro sits and looks down, almost shedding a tear.

Juanito sighs and pats his father on the shoulder. "Sorry. I shouldn't have acted this way."

Alejandro looks up and gets a better grip on the now. "It's okay. Your mother is what's important. Only she truly knows your destiny."

Alejandro gets up and says,

"I will levitate us across, but be careful of the giant water kittens."

"Giant water kittens!?" Juanito exclaims,

"Yes Juanito." "They will eat you and then you will be dead."

Alejandro utters the magic words, and they float across the moat.

"Alright. how do we get in?" Asks Juanito.

"We knock." "Duh."

Alejandro walks up and knocks on the gate.

"Alright, come on in," says the voice.

Chapter 6 by Cody Neubeck

Inside is a regular town with regular people, Right? HECK NO! I MEAN WHAT KIND OF BOOK DO YOU THINK YOU'RE READING, SOMETHING SERIOUS?!?! The gate swings open and inside is a party city. literally, their is a big, fat sign that says 'PARTYCITY' and it's nothing but hot chicks and blaring music. Mr. Unicorn had started staring at a female unicorn.

"Uh, dad?"

"Your mother. Right." said Alejandro. He reversed time.

"Password please!" Demands the voice.

"Uhh..." "Wordpass?" Guesses Alejandro.

"Alright, come on in," says the voice.

The gate swings open and inside is your regular, mid evil city.

Chapter 7 by Tanisha

Juanito and Alejandro just wander.

I mean they weren't actually sure what to do. I mean people totally just go out and do random stuff without a plan right? Where on Earth were they supposed to find Juanito's mother?

It's not like they had a magical necklace that pointed them in whichever direction was the thing that they wanted to find most? I mean, what kind of crazy coincidence would that be?

or maybe...

Hang on a minute. This is a story right? like the kind where impossible things happen along with massive coincidences and everyone either lives happily ever after or you know dies in despair.

So because of the fact that this is one of those stories it just so happened that a particularly careless somebody had dropped a magical necklace that pointed them in whichever direction was the thing that they wanted to find most. Brilliant!
